Re: Extension Requests for Joint Employer Regulation Comments

Dear Roxanne:

Morgan Lewis represents the Coalition for a Democratic Workplace ("CDW") in relation to comments in response to the Notice of Proposed Rulemaking on the "Standard for Determining Joint-Employer Status," at 87 Fed. Reg. 54641 (published Sept. 7, 2022). CDW consists of nearly 500 organizations¹ which include and/or represent the interests of employers throughout the United States, virtually all of which are affected by changes in the joint-employer standard under the National Labor Relations Act.

We write to request extensions of the November 7 and November 21, 2022 deadlines that are currently set for the submission of initial comments and reply comments on the NPRM. Given the expansive nature of the proposed standard and the complexity of issues relating the standard's impact on employers and other entities in different industries, employers and other parties will require more time to engage in a meaningful evaluation of the proposed standard and to formulate comments that will benefit the Board when giving further consideration to the proposed rule and during any development of a final rule. Although we are submitting this request on behalf of the CDW and employers and associations whose interests are represented by CDW, we believe that, with such an extension, the Board will receive much more meaningful comments from advocates for advocates for employers, unions, employees, and all other parties who are likely to be affected by changes in the joint employer standard as proposed in the NPRM.

Besides CDW, the following employers and associations who are members of CDW have determined to join in this request in their individual capacities as well:

- American Bakers Association
- American Council of Engineering Companies
